The Doors Open for Algonquin Businesses in Rockcliffe!

FALL 2012

Canada Lands Company CLC Limited (CLC) is commencing its planning and consultation process to redevelop the former Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Rockcliffe in Ottawa, which CLC acquired from the federal government in 2011. CFB Rockcliffe was originally established by the Department of Defence in 1898. The base was once home to over 450 military families, but since 1994 has been decommissioned.

Prior to acquiring the lands, CLC and the Algonquins of Ontario (AOO) entered into an innovative Participation Agreement, executed in 2010. This Agreement establishes a direct financial interest for the AOO in the development of one of the most desirable and valuable parcels of land in Canada.

The Agreement also provides opportunities for the commemoration of Algonquin heritage and business development ventures. Specifically, CLC and the AOO are committed to maintaining a list of qualified Algonquin companies with the capacity, experience and financial strength to provide consulting services or to undertake various elements of servicing to support the redevelopment of the site. These services include engineering, road construction, sanitary and sewer installation and landscaping – and a host of other opportunities. CLC is committed to informing these companies of any tenders associated with the redevelopment of Rockcliffe.

It is expected that development and construction at the Rockcliffe site will not begin for another two to three years. In the meantime, CLC is seeking the services of qualified landscaping companies to implement an ongoing program of landscape maintenance to manage the growth of vegetation on the site.

The AOO is interested in learning whether there are any eligible Algonquin companies, contractors or suppliers who are available in the spring of 2013 to carry out this landscape maintenance work.
